OMMISSARY.

SCENE 1. Mrs. Mechlin's House. (Loud Knocking at the Door.)
Enter Jenny.

RAP, rap, rap, up stairs and down, from morning to night; if this same Commissary stays much longer amongst us, my mistress must e'en hire a porter. Who's there?

Simon without. Sim. Is Mrs. Mechlin at home?

Jen. No. [Opens the door.] Oh, what is it you,

Enter Simon.

Sim. At your fervice, fweet Mrs. Jane. Jen. Why you knock with authority; and what are your commands, Mafter Simon? Sim. I come, Madam, to receive those of your mistress. What, Jenny, has she any great affair on the anvil? Her fummons is most exceedingly pressing; and you need not be told, child, that a man of my confequence does not trouble himfelf about trifles.

Jen. Oh, Sir! I know very well you principal Mrs. Mechlin's?

actors don't perform every night.

Sim. Mighty well, Ma'am; but notwithstanding your ironical fneer, it is not every man that will do for your miftress; her agents must have genius and Paul's? parts: I don't suppose, in the whole bills of mortality, there is fo general and extensive a dealer as my friend Mrs. Mechlin.

Jen. Why, to be fuse, we have plenty of cuftomers, and for various kinds of commodities; it would be pretty difficult I fancy to Sim Commodities! Your humble fervant, sweet Mrs. Jane; yes, yes, you have various kinds of commodities, indeed.

Jen. Mr. Simon, I don't underftand you; 1 suppose it is no secret in what fort of goods our dealing confifts.

Sim. No, no, they are pretty well known.

Jen. And to be fure, though now and then, to oblige a customer, my mistress does condescend to smuggle a little

Sim. Keep it up, Mrs. Jane.

Jen. Yet there are no people in the liberty of Westminster that live in more credit than we do.

Sim. Bravo.

Jm. The very best of quality are not asham'd to vifit my miftres.
Sim. They have reason.

Jen. Respected by the neighbours.

Sim. I know it.

Jen. Punctual in her payments.

Sim. To a moment.

Jen. Regular hours.

Sim. Doubtlefs.

Jen. Never miffes the farmant on Sundays.

Sim. I own it.

Jen. Not an oath comes out of her mouth ; un-

Sim. Granted.

Jen. Not at all given to lying, but like other tradesfolks, in the way of her bufiness.

Sim. Very well.

Jen. Very well! then pray, Sir, what wou'd you infinuate? Look you, Mr. Simon, don't go to cast reflections upon us; don't think to blast the reputation of our-

Sim. Hark ye, Jenny, are you ferious? Jen. Serious! Ay, marry am I.

Sim. The devil you are !

Jen. Upon my word, Mr. Simon, you fhou'd not give your tongue such a licence; let me tell you, these airs don't become you at all.

Sim. Hey-day! why where the deuce have I got, fure I have mistaken the house; is not this

Jen. That's pretty well known.

Sim. The commodious, convenient Mrs. Mechlin, at the fign of the Star, in the parish of St.

Jen. Bravo.

Sim. That commercial caterpillar?

Jen. I know it.

Sim. That murderer of manufactures?

Jen. Doubtless.

Sim. That walking warehouse?

Jen. Granted.

Sim. That carries about a greater cargo of contraband goods under her petticoats than a Calais cutter ?

Jen. Very well. Sim. That engroffer and seducer of virgins?

Jen. Keep it up, master Simon. Sim. That forestaller of bagnios !

Jen. Incomparable fine! Sim. That canting, cozening, money-lending, match-making, pawnbroking-[Loud knocking.

Jen. Mighty well, Sir : here comes my miftreis, the shall thank you for the pretty picture you have been pleased to draw.

Sim. Nay, but dear Jenny-

Jen. She shall be told how highly she stands in your favour.

Sim. But, my sweet girl [Knock again.

Jen. Let me go, Mr. Simon, don't you hear?

Sim. And can you have the heart to ruin me at

Jen. Hands off,

Sim. A peace, a peace, my dear Mrs. Jene, and his flomach's come down. Does he like the in dictate the articles.

Enter Mrs. Mechlin, followed by a Hackney Coachman, with feweral Bundles, in a Capuchin, a Bonnet, and ber Clothes pinned up.

Mrs. Mech. So, huffy, what must I stay all day in the ftreets? Who have we here! the devil's in the wenches, I think-one of your fellows, I fup--Oh, is it you! how fares it Simon?

Jen. Madam, you should not have waited a minute, but Mr. Simon-

Sim. Hufh, hash! you barbarous jade-

Jen. Knowing your knock, and eager to open the door, flew up stairs, fell over the landing-place, and quite barr'd up the way.

Sim. Yes, and I am afraid I have put out my ancle .- Thanks, Jenny ; you shall be no lofer, you

Mrs. Mecb. Poor Simon --- Oh, Lord have mercy upon me, what a round have I taken !--- Is the weach petrified? why don't you reach me a chair, don't you fee I'm tired to death?

Jen. Indeed, Ma'am, you'll kill yourfelf.
Sim. Upon my word, Ma'am Mechlin, you fhou'd take a little care of yourfelf; indeed you labour too hard.

Mrs. Mech, Ay, Simon, and for little or nothing : only victuals and clothes, more coft than worship. Why does not the wench take the things from the fellow ?-Well, what's your fare i

Coach. Miftrefs, it's honeftly worth half a crown; Mrs. Mecb. Give him a couple of shillings, and fend him away.

Coach. I hope you'll tip me the tefter to drink? Mrs. Mech. Them there fellows are never contented; drink! ftand farther off; why you fmel! already as ftrong as a beer-barrel.

Coach. Miftreis, that's because I have already een drinking.

Mrs. Mecb. And are not you ashamed, you fot, to be eternally guzzling? You had better buy you fome clothes.

Coach. No, miftrefs, my honour won't let me do that. Mrs. Mech. Your honour! and pray, how does that hinder you?

Coach. Why, when a good gentlewoman like you, cries, Here, coachman, here's fomething to drink-

Mrs. Mecb. Well!

Coach. Wou'd it be honour in me to lay it out in any thing elfe? No, mistress, my conscience won't let me ; because why, it is the will of the donor, you know

Mrs. Mecb. Did you ever hear fuch a blockhead ! Coach. No, no, miftress ; tho' I am a poor man, I won't forfeit my honour; my cattle, tho'f I love 'em, poor beatteffes, are not more dearer to me than that.

Mrs. Mecb. Yes, you and your horfes give pretty ftrong proofs of your love and your honour; for you have no clothes on your back, and they have no fieh .- Well, Jenny, give him thefir-pence-there there, lay it out as you will.

Coach. It will be to your health, miftrefs; it shall melt at the Meufe, before I go home : I shall be careful to clear my conscience. Mrs. Mecb. I don't doubt it.

Coach. You need not .- Miftrefs, your fervant.

Exit Coachman: Mrs. Mech. Has there been any body here, Jenny? Jenny. The gentleman, Ma'am, about the Gloucestershire living.

Mrs. Mecb. He was; Oh, oh! what I suppose Hole, and you are always so full of employment.

cumbrance? will he marry the party?

Jen. Why that article feems to go a little again

Mrs. Mecb. Does it fo? then let him retire his Cumberland curacy : that's a fine keen air, will foon give him an appetite. He'll flick to his honour, too, till his cassock is wore to a rag. Jen. Why, indeed, Ma'am, it seems pretty rufty already.

Mrs. Mecb. Devilish squeamish, I think ; a goo fat living, and a fine woman into the bargain! You told him a friend of the lady's will take the child off her hands ?-

Jen. Yes, Madam.

Mrs. Mecb. So that the affair will be a fecret to all but himself. But he must quickly resolve, for next week his wife's month will be up.

Jen. He promised to call about four. Mrs. Mecb. But don't let him think we are at a lofs for a hesband; there is to my knowledge a merchant's clerk in the city, a comely young man, and comes of good friends, that will take her with but a small place in the Custom-house.

Jen. He shall know it.
Mrs. Mech. Ay, and tell him, that the party's party has interest enough to obtain it whenever he will. And then the bridegroom may put the purchase-money too of that same presentation into his pocket.

Jen. Truly, Ma'am, I fould think this would prove the best match for the lady.

Mrs. Mecb. Who doubts it ? --- Here, Jenny, carry these things above stairs. Take care of the eigrette, leave the watch upon the table, and be fure you don't miday the pearl necklace; the lady goes to Mrs. Cornelly's to night; and, if the has any luck, the will be fure to redeem it to-morrow. Sim. What a world of affairs ! it is a wonder, Madam, how you are able to remember them all.

Mrs. Mecb. Trifles, mere trifles, mafter Simon. But I have a great affair in hand --- Such an affair, if well managed, it will be the making of usall. Sim. If I, Ma'am, can be of the least use-

Mrs. Mech. Of the highest! there is no doing -You know the greatwithout you-

Yen. I have put the things where you ordered,

Mrs. Mecb. Very well, you may go. [Ex. Jen.] I fay, you know the great Commissary, that is come to lodge in my house. Now they say this Mr. Fungus is as rich as an Indian governor: Heavet knows how he came by it! but that, you know, if no business of ours. Pretty pickings, I warrant, aproad. [Loud knocking.] Who the deuce can that be? But let it be who it will, you must not go till I fpeak to you.

Enter Jenny.

Yen. The Widow Loveit, Ma'am.

Mrs. Mech. What, the old liquorish dowaget from Devonshire-square? Shew her in. [Ex. Jen.] You'll wait in the kitchen, Simon, I shall soon [Exit Simon. dispatch her affair, Enter Mrs. Loveit. Mrs. Lov. So, fo ! good morning to you, good Mrs. Mechlin .- John, let the coach wait at the

Mrs. Mecb. Porgot you! you shall judge, Mrs. Loveit. I have, Ma'am, provided a whole cargo of husbands for you, of all nations, complexions, ages, tempers, and fizes: fo you fee you have nothing to do but chuse.

Mrs. Lov. To chuse! Mrs. Mechlin; Lord help me, what choice can I have? I look upon wedlock to be a kind of a lottery, and I have already drawn my prize; and a great one it was! My poor dear nan that's gone, I shall never meet with his fellow.

Mrs. Mecb. 'Pihaw! Madam, don't let us trouble our heads about him, it's high time that he was

Mrs. Low. But won't his relations think me rather too quick?

Mrs. Mecb. Not a jot; the greatest compliment you cou'd pay to his memory; it is a proof he gave you mean by quick! Why he has been bury'd thefe

Mrs. Lov. And three days, Mrs. Mechlin.
Mrs. Mech. Indeed! quite an age!
Mrs. Lop. Yes; but I shall never forget him; desping, or waking, he's always before me. His dear (well'd belly, and his poor shrunk legs! Lore bless me, Mrs. Mechlin, he had no more calf than my fan,

Mrs. Mecb. No!

Mrs. Low. No, indeed; and then, his bit of a purple nofe, and his little weezen face as sharp as a mor-don't mention it, I can never forget him.

Mrs. Mecb. Sweet marks of remembrance, indeed. But, Ma'am, if you continue to be fo fond of your last husband, what makes you think of another?

Mrs. Low. Why, what can I do, Mrs. Mechlin? spoor lone widow-woman as I am : there's no body minds me; my tenants behind-hand, my fervants all careless, my children undutiful-Ugh, ugh, Mrs. Mech. You have a villainous cough, Mrs. Loveit; shall I fend for fome lozenges?

Mrs. Low. No, I thank you, it's nothing at all; mere babit, just a little trick I've got.

Mrs. Mecb. But I wonder you shou'd have all these vexations to plague you, Madam; you, who are fo rich, and fo-

Mrs. Low. Mrs. Mecb. Oh, I understand you, you marr merely for convenience; just only to get an af-fifiant, a kind of a guard, a fence to your property? Mrs. Low. Nothing elfe.

Mrs. Merb. I thought fo; quite prudential; fo that age is none of your object; you don't want a

Mrs. Lov. Young! Heaven forbid. What, do you think, like fome ladies I know, that I want to have my husband taken for one of my grand-children; no, no; thank Heaven, such vain thoughts

Mrs. Mech. But yet, as your matters fland, he bught not to be fo very old neither; for infrance now, of what use to you wou'd be a husband of fixty?

Mrs. Low. Sixty! are you mad, Mrs. Mechlin, what do you think I want to turn nurse? Mrs. Mech. Or fifty-five?

Mrs. Lov. Ugh, ugh, ugh-

Mrs. Mech. Or fifty?
Mrs. Lov. Oh! that's too cunning an age; men, now-a-days, rarely marry at fifty, they are too knowing and cautious.

Mrs. Mecb. Or forty-five, or forty, or-

Mrs. Lov. Shall I, Mrs. Mechlin, tell you a piece of my mind?

Mrs. Mech. I believe, Ma'am, that will be your best way.

Mrs. Lov. Why then, as my children are young and rebellious, the way to fecure and preferve their obedience, will be to marry a man that won't grow old in a hurry.

Mrs. Mech. Why I thought you declar'd against youth?

Mrs. Low. So I do, fo I do; but then, fix or feven and twenty is not fo very young, Mrs. Mechlin.

Mrs. Mech. No, no, a pretty ripe age; for at that time of life, men can buftle and fiir, they are not easily check'd, and whatever they take in Mrs. Lov. True, true.

Mrs. Mecb. Ay, ay, it is then they may be faid to be uleful; it is the only tear and wear feafon.

Mrs. Lov. Right, right.

Mrs. Mecb. Well, Ma'am, I fee what you want, and to-morrow about this time, if you'll do me the favour to call-

Mrs. Low. I shan't fail.

Mrs. Mech. I think I can fuit you. Mrs. Lov. You'll be very obliging.

Mrs. Mecb. You may depend upon't, I'll do my endeavours.

Mrs. Low. But, Mrs. Mechlin, be fure don't let him be older than that, not above feven or eight and twenty at most; and let it be as foon as you conveniently can.

Mrs. Mech. Never fear, Ma'am.

Mrs. Low. Because, you know, the more children I have by the second venter, the greater plague I shall prove to those I had by the first.

Mrs. Mecb. True, Ma'am. You had better lean on me to the door; but, indeed, Mrs. Loveit, you are very malicious to your children, very revengeful, indeed.

Mrs. Low. Ah, they deferve it; you can't think what fad whelps they turn out; no punishment can be too much ; if their poor father cou'd but have foreseen they wou'd have—why did I mention the dear man! it melts me too much. Well, peace be with him.—To-morrow about this time, Mrs. Mechlin, will the party be here,

Mrs. Mecb. I can't fay.

Mrs. Low. Well, a good day, good Mrs Mechlin. Mrs. Mecb. Here, John, take care of your mif-[Erit Mrs. Loveit. A good morning to you, Ma'am .- Jenny, bid Simon come up .- A husband! there now is a proof of the prudence of age; I wonder they don't add a clause to the act to prevent the old from marrying clandestinely as well as the young. I am sure there are as many unsuitable matches at this time of life as the other.

Enter Simon. Shut the door, Simon. Are there any of Mr. Fungus's fervants below?

Sim. Three or four ftrange faces.

Mrs. Mecb. Ay, ay, some of that troop, I sup-pose; come, Simon, be seated.—Well, Simon, as I was telling you; this Mr. Fungus, my lodger above, that has brought home from the wars a whole cart-load of money; and who (between you and I) went there from very little better than a driver of

Sim. I formerly knew him, Ma'am.

Mrs. Mecb. But he does not know you?

Sim. No, no.

Mrs. Metb. I'am glad of that--this fpark, 1 fay, not content with being really as rich as a lord, is determin'd to rival them too in every other accomplishment.

Sim. Will that be fo eafy? why he muft be upwards of-

Mrs. Mech. Fifty, I warrant.

Sim. Rather late in life to fet up for a gentleman. Mrs. Mecb. But fine talents, you know, an a strong inclination-

Sim. That, indeed_______ Mrs. Mech. Then I promise you he spares for no pains.

Sim. Diligent?

Mrs. Mecb. Oh, always at it. Learning fomething or other from morning to night. My houlis a perfect academy; fuch a throng of fences, dancers, riders, muficians—but, however, to fweeten the pill, I have a fellow-reeling for recommending the teachers.

Sim. No doubt, Ma'am, that's always the rule. Mrs. Mecb. But one of his fludies is really diverting; I own I can't help laughing at that. Sim. What may that be?

Mrs. Mecb. Oratory .- You must know his first ambition is to have a feat in a certain affembly; and in order to appear there with credit, Mr. What d'ye Call'em, the man from the city, attends every morning to give him a lecture upon speaking, and there is such haranguing and bellowing between them-Lord have mercy upon-but you'll fee enough on't you'felf; for do you know, Simon, you are to be his valet-de-chambre?

Sim. Me, Madam!

Mrs. M.cb. Ay, his privy counseller, his confidant, his director in chief.

Sim. To what end will that answer?

Mrs. Mecb. The e I am coming-You are to know, that our 'Squire Wou'd-be is viclently ben upon matrimony; and nothing forfooth will ge down but a person of rank and condition

Sim. Ay, ay, for that piece of pride he's in-

Mrs. Mecb. The article of fortune he holds in otter contempt, a grand alliance is all that he wants; fo that the lady has but her veins full of high blood, he does not care two-pence how low at the corner; may the come in? and empty her purfe is.

Sim. But, Ma'am, won't it be difficult to meet Yen. Oh, the is to muffled up and disguised, that with a suitable subject? I believe there are few la-

Mrs. Mecb. Oh, as to that, I am already prowided.

Sim. Indeed!

Mrs. Mech. You know my niece Dolly? Sim Very well. Mrs. Mech. What think you of her?

Sim. Of Mifs Dolly, for what?

Mrs. Mecb. For what? you are plaguily dull;

why, a woman of fashion, you dunce.

Sim. To be sure Mils Dolly is very deserving and few ladies have a better appearance; but, ble is way; for it is me that must introduce you above me, Madam, here people of rank are so generally [Exit Simon.] So, things feem now in a pretty known, that the slightest enquiry would posson good train; a few hours, it is to be hoped, will your project.

Sim. If that, indeed, be the cafe-Mrs. Mecb. In the first place, Mr. Fungus has an intire reliance on me.

Sim. That's fomething.

Mrs. M.cb. Then to baffle any idle curiofity, we are not derived from any of your new-fangled gentry, who owe their upftart nobility to your Harry's and Edwards. No, no, we are scions from a older flock ; we are the hundred and fortieth lines descendant from Hercules Alexan er, earl of Gen dowery, prime-minister to King Malcolm the first.

Sim. Odfo ! a qualification for a canon of Strafbourg. So then, it feems, you are transplanted from the banks of the Tweed; cry you mercy! But how will Miss D.lly be able to manage the accent!

Mrs. Mech. Very well; the was two years an actress in Edenborough.

Sim. That's true. Is the overture made; has there been any interview?

Mrs. Mech. Several; we have no diflike to his perlin ; can't but own he is rather agreeable; and as to his proposals, they are greater than we cou defire; but we are prudent and careful, fay no.h.ng without the eari's approbation.

Sim. Oh, that will be easily had.

Mrs. Mecb. Not fo eafily; and now comes you part : but first, how goes the world with you Simon?

Sim. Never worfe! the ten bags of tea, and th cargo of brandy, them peering rascals took from me in Suffex, has quite broken my back, Mrs. Mecb. Poor Simon! why then I am afraid there's an end of your traffick.

Sim: Totally : for now those fellows have got the Ifle of Man in their hands, I have no chance to get home, Mrs. Mechlin.

Mrs Mech. Then you are intirely at leifure? Sim. As a Bath turnspit in the month of July.

Mrs. Mecb. You are then, Simon, an old family-fewant in waiting here on the lady; but dispatch'd to the north with a view to negotiate the treaty, you are just recurned with the noble peer refolution. Prepare you a suitable equipage, I wil provide you with a couple of letters, one for the lover, and one for the lady-

Sim. The contents-

Mrs. Mech. Oh, you may read them within Now with regard to any questions, I will furnish you with suitable answers; but you have a bungle to deal with, fo your cards will be cafi'y play'd.

I. Fun. Impertinent, indeed. I wander all those people don't turn your head, Mrs. Mechlin.

Mrs. Mech. Oh, I am pretty well us'd to 'em. But who comes here! Mr. Ifaac, if you will ftep into the next room, I have fomething to communicate that well deserves your attention.

[Exit Ifaac Fungus. Enter Simon.

Sim. Doctor Catgut at the foot of the flairs.

pegs-for the floughs, the mires, the ruts, the Mrs. Mecb. The devil he is! What can have brought him at this time of day? - Watch, Simon, fleed travelled through; he now pricks up his ears, that novody comes up whilft he is here. [E. fent we feat him to day.

Enter Dr. Catgut. Dr. Cat. Madam Mechlin, your humble. have, Ma'am, received a couple of compliments Z. Fun. Gadfo then here we must end. You'll from your mansion this morning; one I find from a pardon me, good Mr. Gruel; for as I want to be lodger of yours, the other, I presume, from your finished gentleman as foon as I can, it is impossible niece; but for the last, I rather suppose I am in-

Mrs. Mecb. Me ! indeed, Doctor, you are wide-

Dr. Cat. Then I am falfely informed.

Mrs. Mecb. But after all, you must own it is but what you deserve; I wonder, Doctor, you don't leave off these tricks.

Dr. Cat. Why, what can I do, Mrs. Mechlin?

my constitution requires it.

Mrs. Mecb. Indeed, I should not have thought it. Dr. Cat. Then the dear little devils are fo defperately fond.

Mrs, Mecb. Without doubt.

Dr. Car. And for frolick, flirtation, diligence, dreis, and address

Mrs. Mecb. To be fure.

Dr. Cat. For what you call genuine gallantry, few men, I flattermyfelf, will be found that can match me.

Mrs. Mecb. Oh, that's a point given up.
Dr. Cat. Hark ye, Molly Mechlin; let me perish, child, you look divinely to-day. Mrs. Mech. Indeed!

Dr. Cat. But that I have two or three affairs on my hands, I should be positively tempted to trifle with thee a little.

Mrs. Mech. Ay, but doctor, confider I am not of a trifling age, it would be only lofing your time.

Dr. Cat. Ha, so coy! But apropos, Molly; this lodger of yours; who is he, and what does he want? Mrs. Mech. You have heard of the great Mr.

Dr. Cat. Well!

Mrs. Mecb. Being informed of your skill and abilities, he has fent for you to teach him to fing.

Dr. Cat. Me teach him to fing! What does the feoundrel mean to affront me?

Mrs. Mecb. Affronc you!

Dr. Cat. Why, don't you know, child, that I quitted that paltry profession?

Mrs. Mech. Not 1.

Dr. Cat. Oh, intirely renounc'd it.

Mrs. Mecb. Then what may you follow at prefent? Dr. Cat. Me !- nothing. I am a poet, my dear.

Mrs. Mech. A poet!

Dr. Cat. A poet. The muses; you know I was always fond of the ladies: I suppose you have heard of Shakespeare, and Shadwell, of Tom Brown, and of Milton, and Hedibras?

Mrs. Mecb. I have.

Dr. Car. I fall blaft all their laurels, by gad; 1 have just given the public a tafte, but there's a bellyfull for them in my larder at home.

Mrs. Mech. Upon my word, you surprise me; but pray; is poetry a trade to be learn'd? Dr. Cat. Doubtless. Capital as I am, I have not acquired it above a couple of years.

Mrs. Mech. And coud you communicate your art to another?

Dr. Cat. To be fure. Why I have here in my pocket, my dear, a whole folio of rhymes, from Z quite to great A. Let us see, A, ay, here it be-gins, A, ass, pass, grass, mass, lass, and so quite thro' the alphabet down to Z. Zounds, grounds, Mrs. Metb. And what do you do with these rhymes?

Dr. Cat. Oh, we supply them.

Mrs. Mecb. Supply them?
Dr. Cat. Ay, fill them up, as I will fhew you.
Last week, in a ramble to Dulwich, I made these rhymes into a duet for a new comic opera I have on the stocks. Mind, for I look upon the words as a model for that fort of writing.

First the: -There to fee the flaggift aft,
Through the meadows as we past,
Eating up the farmer's grafs,

Blitbe and merny, by the mast, As a lively country lass.

Mrs. Mech. Very pretty.

Dr. Cat. A'n't it. Then he replies: Hear the farmer cry out, Zounds! As be trudges through the grounds, Yonder beaft has broke my mounds; If the parish bas no pounds, Kill, and give bim to the bounds.

Then Da Capo, both join in repeating the last stanza; and this tack'd to a tolerable tune, will run you for a couple of months. You observe?

Mrs. Mech. Clearly. As our gentleman is defirous to learn all kinds of things, I can't help thinking but he will take a fancy to this.

Dr. Cat. In that case, he may command me, my dear; and I promise you, in a couple of months, he shall know as much of the matter as I do.

Mrs. Mech. At present he is a little engaged, but as foon as the honey-moon is over-

Dr. Cat. Honey-moon! Why, is he going to be marry'd?

Mrs. Mecb. This evening, I fancy.

Dr. Cat. The finest opportunity for an intro-duction, in nature; I have by me, Ma'am Mechlin, of my own composition, such an epithalmium. Mrs. Mecb. Thalmium, what's that?

Dr. Cat. A kind of an elegy, that we poets compole at the folemnization of weddings.

Mrs. Mecb. Oh, ha!

Dr. Car. It is fet to mufick already; for I ftill compole for myfelf.

Mrs. Mecb. You do?

Dr. Cat. Yes. What think you now of providing a band, and serenading the squire to-night? It will be a pretty extempose compliment.

Mrs. Mecb. The prettieft thought in the world. But I hear Mr. Fungus's beil. You'll excuse me, dear Doctor, you may suppose we are busy.

Dr. Cat. No apology then; I'll about it this inftant.

Mrs. Mecb. As foon as you pleafe-Any thing to get you out of the way. [Afide, and exit. Dr. Cot. Your obsequious, good Madam Mechlin. But notwithflanding all your fine speeches, I threwdly suspect my bleffed bargain at home was a present from you; and what shall I do with it?— These little embarasses we men of intrigue are eternally subject to. There will be no sending it back. She will never let it enter the house .- Hey! gad, a lucky thought is come into my head-this ferenade is finely contrived .- Madam Mechlin shall have her coufin again, for I will return her bye-blow in the body of a double base-viol; so the bawd shall have a concert as well as the fquire.

[Enit Dr. Catgut.

Y. Lov. That may be, but you must give me leave to infift.

Har. Well, well, as you pleafe. Enter Mrs. Mechlin.

Your very humble fervant, good Madam Mehclin; I have taken the liberty to introduce a young gentleman, a friend of mine, to crave your affiftance.

Mrs. Mech. Any friend of yours, Mr. Harpy; won't you be feated, Sir.

Y. Lov. Ma'am. [They fit down. Mrs. Mecb. And pray, Sir, how can I ferve you? Har. Why, Ma'am, the gentleman's fituation but, Sir, you had better state your case to Mrs. Mechlin yourself. T. Lov. Why, you are to know, Ma'am, that I am just escap'd from the university, where (I need not tell you) you are greatly efteem'd.

Mrs. Mecb. Very obliging. I must own, Sir, I have had a very great respect for that learned body, ever fince they made a near and dear friend of mine a doctor of mufic.

T.Lov. Yes, Ma'am, I remember the gentleman. Mrs Merb. Do you know him, Sir? I expect him here every minute to inftruct a lodger of mine.

T. Lov. Not intimately. Just arriv'd, but last night; upon my coming to town I found my rather deceas'd, and all his fortune devis'd to his relief, my

Mrs. Mecb. What, the whole!

T. Lov. Every shilling. That is, for her life. Mrs. Mech. And to what sum may it amount?

T. Low. Why, my mother is eternally telling me, that after her, I shall inherit fifty or fixty thousand at leaft.

Mrs. Mecb. Upon my word, a capital fum.

T. Low. But of what use, my dear Mrs. Mechlin, fince the refuses to advance me a guinea upon the credit of it, and while the grass grows—you know the proverb .- Mrs. Mech. What, I suppose you want something for present subfistence.

T. Lov. Just my fituation.

Mrs. Macb. Have you thought of nothing for yourfelf?

7. Lov. I am resolved to be guilded by you. Mrs. Mech. What do you think of a wife?

Y. Lov. A wife!
Mr. Mets. Come, come, don't despise my advice; when a young man's finances are low, a wife ladyfhip?

band of the widow Champanly, from the ille of St. is a much better resource than a usurer; and there are in this town a number of kind-hearted widows, that take a pleasure in repairing the injuries done by fortune to handsome young fellows.

Har. Mrs. Mechlin has reason.

Y. Lov. But, dear Ma'am, what can I do with a

Mrs. Mach. Do! Why, like other young fellows who marry ladies a little stricken in years; make her your banker and fleward. If you fay but the word, before night I'll give you a widow with two thousand a year in her pocket.

T. Lov. Two thousand a year! a pretty employment, if the residence cou'd but be dispens'd with.

Mrs Mech. What do you mean by refidence? Do under the wing of an old maiden aunt, as watchful you think a gentleman, like a pitiful trader, is to as a dragon—but hush—I hear Mrs. Mechlin, I'll be eternally tack'd to his wife's petticoat: when she is in town, be you in the country; as the thifts do you thift. Why, you need not be with her above thirty days in the year; and let me tell you, you won't find a more easy condition; twelve months subfiftence for one month's labour!

Low. Two thousand a year, you are sure?

Mrs. Mech. The least penny.

T. Lov. Well, Madam, you shall dispose of me uft as you pleafe.

Mrs. Meeb. Very well, if you will call in half an hour at fartheft, I believe we shall finish the bufiness.

Y. Lov. In half an hour?

Mrs. Mecb. Precifely. Oh, dispatch is the very life and foul of my trade. Mr. Harpy will tell you my terms, you will find them reasonable enough.

Har. Oh, I am sure we shall have no dispute

Y. Lov. No, no .-Mrs. Meeb. Oh, but Mr. Harpy, it may be pro per to mention that the gentlewoman, the party, is upwards of fixty.

Y. Low. With all my heart; it is the purfe, not the person, I want! Sixty! the is quite a girl; I wish with all my soul she was ninety.

Mrs. Mech. Get you gone, you are a devil, I fee that.

T. Lov. Well, for half an hour, fweet Mrs.

Mechlin, adieu. [Exeunt Young Loveit and Harpy.

Mrs. Mech. Soh! I have provided for my dowager from Devonshire-square, and now to cater for my Commiffary. Here he comes.

Enter Fungus and Bridoun.

-Oh, Mrs. Mech-Fun. So, in fix weeksany news from the lady?

Mrs. Mecb. I expect her here every moment. She is conscious that in this step, she descends from her dignity; but being defirous to fersen you from the fury of her noble relations, the is determined to let them fee that the act and deed is intirely her own.

Fun. Very kind, very obliging indeed. But, Mrs. Mechlin, as the family is fo furious, I reckon we shall never be reconcil'd.

Mrs. Meeb. I don't know that. When you have bought commissions for her three younger brothers, discharged the mortgage on the paternal estate, and portioned off eight or ning of her fifters, it is not impossible but my lord may be prevailed on to suffer your name-

Fun. Do you think fo? Mrs. Mecb. Bus then a work of time, Mr. Funger. Fun. Ay, ay, I know very well things of that kind are not brought about in a hurry.

Mrs. Mech. But I muft prepare matters for the indy's reception.

Fim. By all means. The jewels are fent to her

Mrs. Mecb. To be fure.

Fan. And the ring for her ladyship, and her la-dyship's scence? Mrs. Merb. Ay, sy, and her ladyship's parson too; all are prepar'd. Fun. Parlon! why won't her ladiship please to be marry'd at Powl's lady of her rank and condition would bear to be feen in public at once with a person like you?

Fun. That's true, I

Mrs. Mecb. No, no; I have fent to Dr. Tickletext, and the bufiness will be done in the parlour

Fun. As you and her ladythip pleases, good Mrs.

Mechlin.

Mrs. Mecb. You will get drefs'd as foon as you

Fun. I shall only take a short lesson from Mr. Bridoun, and then wait her ladyship's pleasure. Mrs. Mechlin, may my brother be by

Mrs. Mecb. Ay, sy, provided his being fo is kept a feeret from her.

Fun. Never fear .- [Exit Mrs. Mechlin. Well, Mr. Bridoun, and you think I am mended a little Brid. A great deal.

Fun. And that in a month or fix weeks I may be able to prance upon a long-tail'd horse in Hydepark, without any danger of falling ?.

Brid. Without doubt.

Fun. It will be vaft pleafant, in the heat of the day, to canter along the King's-road, fide by fide with the ladies, in the thick of the duft; but that I muft not hope for this fummer.

Brid. I don't know that, if you follow it close. Fan. Never feat : I fhan't be sparing of-John, have the carpenters brought home my new horfe?

Enter Mrs. Loveit.

Mrs. Low. Hahl

T. Lov. By all that's monstrous, my mother! Mes. Low. That rebel my fon, as I live !

T. Lev. The quotation was quite apropos; had it been a little darker, I might have reviv'd the ftory of Oedipus.

Mrs. Lov. So, Sirrah, what makes you from your fludies ? Y. Low. A fmall hint I receiv'd of your inclinations brought me here, Ma'am, in order to prevent, if possible, my father's furture from going out of the family.

Mrs. Lov. Your father? how dare you disturb his dear aftes? you know well enough how his dear memory melts me, and that at his very name my heart is ready to break. 2. Lov. Well faid, my old matron of Bphefus.

Mrs. Lov. That is what you want, you difeb dient unnatural monfter; but compleat, accomplish your cruelty : fend me the fame road your villanies forc'd your father to take.

Mrs. Mech. Hey-day ! What the deuce have we here; our old lady in tears!

Mrs. Lov. Disappointed a little ; that's all.

Mrs. Mech. Pray, Ma'am, what can occasion-Mrs. Lov. Lord bless me, Mrs. Mechlin, what a blunder you have made ! Mrs. Mecb. A blunder ! as how ?

Mrs. Low. Do you know who you have brought Mes, Mecb. Not perfectly.

Mrs. Lov. My own fon! that's all.

Mrs. Lov. Ay, that rebellious, unnatural-

Mrs. Mecb. Blunder indeed! But who could have thought it; why, by your account, Ma'am, I imagin'd your fon was a child fcarce out of his frocks.

Enter Fungus and Dolly.

Fun. What is the matter? you make fuch a noise, there is no such thing as minding the writ-

Mrs. Mech. This worthy lady, an old friend of mine, not having fet eyes on her fon fince the death of his father; and being apprifed by me, that here he might meet with him, came with a true paternal affection to give him a little wholesome advice.

Mrs. Lov. Well said, Mrs. Mechlin.

Mrs. Mech. Which the young man returned in a way so brutal and barbarous, that his poor mother-be comforted, Ma'am ; you had better repose on my bed.

Mrs. Lov. Any where to get out of his fight.

Mrs. Mech. Here, Jenny. Mrs. Lev. Do you think you can procure me Mrs. Mech. Never doubt it.

Exit coughing. Mrs. Low. Ugh, ugh-Mrs. Mecb. Bear up a little, Ma'am.

Fun. Fye upon you, you have thrown the old gentle woman into the ftericks.

T. Lov. Sir! Fun. You a man, you are a fcandal, a shame to your fect.

Enter Dr. Catgut.

Dr. Cat. Come, come, Mrs. Mechlin, are the couple prepar'd; the fiddles are tun'd, the bows ready rofin'd, und the whole band-Oh, you, Sir, are one party I reckon, but where is the-Ah, Dolly, what are you here, my dear?

Dolly. Soh?
Fun. Dolly! Who the devil can this be?

Dr. Car. As nice and as spruce too! the bridemaid, I warrant? why you look as blooming, you

Fun. What can this be? hack ye, Sir!

Dr. Cat. Well, Sir.

Fun. Don't you think you are rather too familiat with a lady of her rank and condition?

Dr. Cat. Rank and condition: what, Dolly? Fun. Dolly ! what a plague possesses the man; this is no Dolly, I tell you. Dr. Cat. No!

Fun. No, this is Lady Scracariffa Mackirkineroft Dr. Cat. Who?

Fun. Descended from the old, old, old Earl of Or. Cat. What the, Dolly Mechlin?

Fun. Dolly Devil, the man's out of his wits, believe.

Enter Mrs. Mechlin.

Oh, Mrs. Mechlin, will you fet this matter to rights ?

Mrs. Mecb. How, Dr. Catgut!

Fun. The strangest fellow here has dane'd up stairs, and has Dolly, Dolly, Dolly'd my ladyi who the plague can he be?

Dr. Cat. Oh, apropos, Molly Mechlin, what is this the man that is to be married? the man age will never hold good; why he is more franti and madder

Fun. Mad! John, fetch me the foils; I'll cut and tierce you, you scoundrel.

Z. Fun. No, I believe not; why, what is

I. Fun. Pretty hands you are got into !-Your fervant, good Madam; what this is the person, I warrant; ay, how pretty the puppet is painted?

do you know who she is? Z. Fun. Who fhe is ? without doubt.

I. Fun. No you don't, brother Zac. only the fawn of that devil incarnate, dress out as-

Z. Fun. But hark ye, Ifaac, are-don't be in a hurry-are you fure-the girl of the house, abhorring their scandalous project, has freely confessed the whole scheme. Jenny, stand forth, and answer boldly to what I shall ask; Is not this wench the woman's niece of the house?

Jen. I fancy, the will hardly deny it.

J. Fun. And is not this miftress of yours a most profligate-

Mrs. Mecb. Come, come, Mafter Isaac, I will fave you the trouble, and cut this matter short in an instant—well then, this girl, this Dolly, is my niece; and what then?

Z.Fun. And ar'n't you asham'd?
Y. Low. She asham'd? I wou'd have told you, but I cou'd not get you to liften; why the brought me here to marry my mother.

Z. Fun. Marry your mother! Lord have mercy on us, what a monfter! to draw a young man in to be guilty of incense. But hark ye, brother [They retire.

Dr. Cat. Gad's my life, what a fweet project I have help'd to deftroy; but come, Dolly, I'll piece I. Fun. Where's brother, it a'n't over; you thy broken fortunes again; thou haft a good pretty voice, I'll teach thee a thrill and a shake, perch thee amongst the boughs at one of the gardens; and then as a miftress, which, as the world goes, is a much better flation than that of a wife, not the proudest of them all-

Mrs. Mecb. Miftress! no, no, we have not managed our matters fo badly. Hark fe, Mr.

Commiffary.

Z. Fun. Well, what do you want?

Mrs. Mecb. Do you propose to consummate your nuptials?

Z. Fun. That's a pretty question, indeed.
Mrs. Mecb. You have no objection then to paying the penalty, the contract here that Mr. Harpy has drawn.

Z. Fun. The contract, hey, brother Ifaac.

I. Fun. Let me fee it.

Mrs. Mecb. Soft you there, my maker of candles, it is as well where it is; but you need not doubt of it's goodness: I promise you the best advice has been taken.

Z. Fun. What a damn'd fiend; what a harpy! Mrs. Mech. And why so, my good master Fun-gus; is it because I have practis'd that trade by re-tail which you have carried on in the gross? What injury do I do the world? I feed on their follies. 'tis true; and the game, the plunder, is fair; but the fangs of you and your tribe,
